Program

Inn from the Storm offers a 3-6 month transitional discharge plan prior to leaving prison. Once released the offenders will be offered 4 creative Transitional Case Management Service Plans designed for ex-offenders based on a comprehensive individual assessment. The programs are designed to mitigate problems for ex-offenders to concentrate on while adjusting to life on the outside. The offenders will become familiar with an organization that will assist with supportive services that will afford a greater chance for success into the community. Inn from the Storm will offer employment services, community service, educational training (assisting with obtaining their GED) mental health counseling, health assessment, and transitional housing.

Therapy

Our in-house therapist is available to ensure each returning citizen a personalized care plan. The ex-offenders need guidance and directions and this is a top priority. A motivated person will receive the much needed help if they are willing to work for it.

Why We Do This

In the many years of working with individuals, providing supportive services, we recognized a pattern. One, no jobs for the returning citizen with a record. Two, women are more likely to have been the primary caretakers of children prior to entering prison and are more likely to return to that role once released. Women incarceration has caused a significant disruption in their children and family lives. They are constantly worrying about the welfare of their children during their incarceration. Incarcerated women stand to lose their parental rights if they do not stay abreast of child welfare actions that require regular contact between a parent and a child placed in foster care. Third, but not last, If the woman can't get a job, they can't pay their fines, pay rent, child support, transportation or even get a birth certificate or state ID. Without a means of support, many will be re-incarcerated and the cycle begins again.

Why Women

The population of women offenders is growing & continues to grow at a faster rate than the population of men. Many feel that the increase to changes in state and national drug policies that mandated prison terms for even relatively low-level drug offenses. According to the Statistics on Women Offenders—2015, the female jail population has been the fastest growing correctional population increasing by an average annual rate of 3.4 percent This does not include women under community supervision.

Women become involved in criminal behavior for different reasons than men:

- Survival of abuse
- Poverty
- Substance abuse

These reasons need to be considered when trying to keep women from reentering the penal system once released.

The relationship between the following three factors are significant and are very common in the life histories of women offenders.

- Physical
- Sexual, and
- Emotional abuse
